It is no more possible to say whether Capital, Labor or Management has contributed more to what Labor Day stands for than it would be to determine which of the horses above was contributing most to the success of the harvest.

Could you support a family if you had to work without tools that save your strength and multiply your skills.

Could you earn a decent living if you didn't have someone else's factory, presses, lathes, rolls, benches or other tools of production to work with?

The answer, if honest, must be no. Even those who support themselves in our modern economy solely by their talents and never touch a screwdriver or a pair of pliers would be helpless in an economy without tools.

Fortunately in America, millions of people have put up their savings to buy the tools of production, either through personal purchase of securities or through bank and insurance savings. These tools have helped the American worker to become the most productive in all the history of the world.

This fact has made it possible for management and employees to enjoy the great advances in both quality and quanity of products that have permitted vast improvements in methods and working conditions. Upon these things rest the social advances for American employees that are commemorated on Labor Day.

May we enjoy many more Labor Days in peace and harmony . . . teamed together for better things!

Scout Troop Enjoys Outing at Camp

Scout Troop 229, co-sponsored by Proximity Methodist Church and Eller Memorial Baptist Church, held an evening weiner roast at Camp Herman August 26.

Guests for the event included several young ladies and Scoutmaster Charles Jones, Mrs. Jones, Charlene and Cindy Jones, Secretary James Lambeth, Chairman Harold Brady, Miss Betty Collins, Institutional Representative Richard Sullivan and Mrs. Sullivan. Earl Tanksley called the group to order at the council circle and Scoutmaster Jones led the group singing. Eddie Rice gave the invocation.

"It was remarkable to see how as scouts the boys were unprepared for the firebuilding task and yet how prepared they were to eat," stated the leaders.

After eating the marshmallows, the group went to the Recreation building for fellowship and fun.

Stanley Brothers Are Outstanding In Legion

Henry and Arthur Stanley were given a rising vote of thanks for their outstanding Legion work by the Cone Post 386, American Legion at the meeting August 26 in the Legion Hall.

During the business session, over which Commander Lloyd K. Parsons presided, the post made a donation to the March of Dimes.

Plans were made for an ice cream supper for post members and their families, Saturday, September 11, at Camp Herman. Members planning to attend should make their reservations not later than September 10, time of the regular meeting of the post.

Plans were also made for a Brunswick stew at White Oak YMCA on October 9. Proceeds will go to the post building fund.

Flies To California

Timothy Sharpe, seven year old grandson of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Parker, 1900 Church Street, flew to Los Angeles, California alone last Monday. He was met by his mother with whom he will make his home in Los Angeles.

Second, Third Shift Employees Enjoy "Y"

Second and third shift employees enjoy special Y.M.C.A. privileges at the close of their working hours. This has greatly eliminated the feeling on the part of employees on these shifts that they were "forgotten people." Now, they not only enjoy the regular privileges of the association from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 at night, but the second shift men and women have from 11 o'clock until midnight for showers and reading room privileges, checkers, dominoes, or a dip in the swimming pool.

The third shift has privileges from 7:00-8:00 in the morning, giving opportunity for shaving, bathing, snack, a dip in the pool, preparing them for an early to bed program. The Y staff is pleased with the number that make use of these facilities, and trust that many others will follow their example. For details, please see one of the following supervisors, who open the buildings at these hours:

Thomas G. Davis, White Oak, 11:00 p.m. to midnight; Dal Seabolt, Proximity, 11:00 p.m. to midnight; Don Bradley, Proximity, 7:00 a.m. to 8:00 a.m.

NOTICE

The undersigned mills will be closed on Monday, September 6, 1954, in observance of Labor Day.

Third shift operations will be resumed at 11:00 o'clock Monday night, September 6, and other shifts will resume operations at the regular time on Tuesday, September 7.

Bowling League

Any plant employee groups who would like to belong to a bowling league should send a representative to White Oak YMCA on Friday night, (tonight) at 7 o'clock. Not only plant groups but anyone who is a member of Cone Memorial YMCA is eligible to belong to a bowling team.

Camp Herman Ends Recreation Season On Labor Day

Labor Day marks the official closing of Camp Herman Recreation Center for Cone Mills employees. While September 6 marks the close of the water front activities, the camp will continue the recreation grounds for Y.M.C.A., plant, departmental, school or community groups making use of the facilities for cook-outs, wiener roasts, hamburger and fish fries, under the supervision of Caretaker Howard Nunn.

Fishing for Cone Mills employees and dependent members of their families is still permissible through the early Fall. Reservaions for outings may be made through the Y.M.C.A. office.

Several thousand people have made use of the recreation facilities during the summer. While the operation of the camp as a Recreation Center is a new adventure in the field of recreation, the Y.M.C.A. has found it to be highly acceptable and greatly appreciated by the employees of Cone Mills. During June, July and August a life guard was kept on duty with an assistant on weekends.

According to the statements of many people, the closeness of the center to the city makes it accessible within a limited amount of time, without too much expense in travel cost. This adds to the desirability of such facilities, and makes possible the large number of patrons availing themselves of an hour, two hours or a half day of recreation.

Eller Memorial Plans Intermediate Week

Intermediate Emphasis week will be observed at Eller Memorial Baptist Church September 5-12.

On Monday, September 6, the Intermediates of the church will have a program for shut-ins at 7 p.m.

On Thursday, the group will make visits.

On Friday of that week, they will have a weiner roast at Camp Herman, followed by a movie and a talk by Rev. John T. Edwards, pastor.

On Sunday, September 12, Intermediates will serve as ushers during morning and evening worship services. Seats will be reserved on that Sunday for a special recognition service.

Miss Frances Holman

Miss Holman Retires After 41 Years Service

A career which has been devoted entirely to helping make a better life for the people of the Proximity community and plant came to a close this week. Miss Frances Holman, Proximity community nurse for 39 years and head of the Proximity Plant First Aid Department for the past two years, retired September 1.

Community Nurse for 39 Years

Although she is not yet at the retirement age, Miss Holman is reluctantly giving up the work she loves so much because of her physical condition.

However, giving up her work does not entail giving up the hundreds of friends she has made throughout her 41 years with Cone Mills. Evidence of those friendships was brought sharply into focus this week when more than the usual number of Proximity employees made a trip to First Aid, not because they were physically ailing or hurt but because they were emotionally torn by the announcement of the retirement of their beloved Miss Holman.

Everybody who came in had a good word for her.

"Dogbite it," said one Weave Room employee, "if you retire, we'll all retire. I want you to come over and eat dinner with me soon; I'll have country ham! Here take this Coke."

"Hot dog! Country ham!" replied the honored one. "Fat back's good enough for me." And she stored that Coke away in the biological refrigerator along with several others, acquired throughout the morning as gifts.

Then came Tuesday morning, that last, tear-raising day, and what happened? Miss Holman received several envelopes containing money from different groups in the plant and a fine U. S. Savings Bond from the overseers. What's more, she was sporting a gift orchid on her spotless white uniform and was surrounded with other gifts, including two lovely bedspreads, a planter, and a potted plant. (Not to mention a Hamilton wrist watch from The Proximity-Print Works Community Club!)

Miss Holman, native of Orangeburg, S. C., came to her job as community nurse in Proximity in 1913 in August, the same month she received her nursing degree from Watts Hospital in Durham. She had already graduated from Asheville Normal College.

During the 39 years she served as community nurse, Miss Holman assisted in the births of 3,500 local babies, more than twice the number of people needed to man the Proximity Plant.

When the terrible flu epidemic swept this area in 1918, the tireless nurse milked cows, did the laundry and cooked, as well as performed the necessary bedside nursing.

In 1950, when Miss Holman returned after a spell of sickness, the people of the community were so glad to have her back, that they proclaimed Frances Holman Appreciation Day and held a big cere-

Cone Mills Inc. announces the appointment of Rodney M. Barnes to its Synthetic Fabrics Division. Mr. Barnes will assist James H. Botz, who is in charge of the division. He will call on the converting trade and assist in the development of new fabrics for this field.

Mr. Barnes for the past six years was associated with Burlington Mills as a sales representative. He carried the men's wear lines to the Philadelphia territory, and later in St. Louis and New York. He also worked as assistant to the sales manager, men's wear division, and for the past year has sold greige goods to the New York converting trade.

Prior to his association with Burlington, Mr. Barnes worked for 14 years as a representative of Dun and Bradstreet.

Little Boy Lost became Little Boy found when the miracle of television was put to use in getting him identified last Tuesday.

When Mrs. Richard Sullivan, wife of Cone Mills Engineering Department employee, 1208 Walnut Street took their eight children into town to see a much publicized circus parade, she didn't count heads when she got back to her car.

It seems that Burtie, age three, just wandered off in the vast crowds of people and was noticed by WFMY-TV Program Manager Gomer Lesch who took him inside the TV station and put him on Cordelia Kelly's cooking program. Mrs. Kelly interrupted her recipe demonstrations to ask her audience to identify the little boy who was so confused and so young he just couldn't make people understand his English.

Immediately two neighbors of the Sullivans recognized their little friend and called to solve the mystery.

As Mrs. Sullivan, who thought by then that Burtie must be with one of the older children, drove into her driveway, the neighbors ran out and excitedly told her Burtie had just been on television. The relieved mother rushed back into town and claimed her son.

Ever since the incident, Burtie has been a Cordelia Kelly fan, never missing her program and calling her his "Sweetheart."

Cone Toastmasters Begin Meetings

Cone Toastmasters had their weekly meeting August 30 at the White Oak YMCA. Four members of the club were speakers for the evening, and each one gave a showing of his ability as a toastmaster. John Griffiths, of the Downtown Toastmasters, served as evaluator.

After a discussion period, the club voted upon and accepted the by-laws. A nominating committee was appointed by the president to suggest a slate of officers to be presented before the club on September 13. These nominations for regular officers will be voted on at the September 20 meeting.

Since Labor Day falls on the next regular meeting day, the club will meet on September 13. Program for that day is as follows: toastmaster, Norman Pinkelton; topicmaster, Wally Brown; evaluator, Merlin Beaver; speakers, Fred Ziprik, Walt Caviness, Joe Mitchell, and L. R. Robertson.

Those who would like to improve in oral expression of thought, increase ability to appear before audiences, secure fair and constructive criticism, should join the Cone Toastmasters Club.

The State Department of Motor Vehicles, with 1,300 employees, is the second largest state agency.

EDNA PLANT SUGGESTION—James Ralph Stephenson, above, employee at Edna Plant, Reidsville, recently suggested that trap doors be put in each hood over the slashers to save time in cleaning and to make unnecessary the use of water when cleaning the slasher. Mr. Stephenson's suggestion proved to be a benefit to the company, and he received a cash award for his idea.

Need For Improvement

The city of Greensboro, like many other towns, has been going through serious growing pains. Simplicity of operations and intimate relationships between all people no longer exist because of the tremendous growth made by the city in the last fifteen to twenty years.

Because of those facts, in all fairness, we must recognize the difficult problems faced by the City Council and others charged with responsibility of attending to the city's affairs.

On the other hand, we feel that we voice average public sentiment when we say that there has been entirely too much confusion, poor timing and planning, and lack of efficiency in the administering of many of the city's affairs.

On of the outstanding illustrations, of course, is the auditorium. To many citizens that situation, as unfortunate as it is, is not as deplorable as many others which have developed in Greensboro during the last few years.

The city has many very capable and efficient men on its managerial staff. Yet, there is little doubt but that the overall top level planning and administering is not recognized as being excellent.

It is unfair and unwise to deal with personalities, but it is safe to state that personal feelings and ambitions have at times replaced sound thinking and good judgement.

Unquestionably there has been too much feuding and fussing, and as a result the city has suffered.

Greensboro at one time was recognized as an ideal city in the South. Relationships between all segments were good. Some of that has been lost in Greensboro and we fear that unless the citizens awaken and recognize the factors which have caused Greensboro to lose some of its most valuable assets, we will continue along the pattern of dissension, poor timing, and develop more and more inefficiencies.

Again we would like to emphasize the fact that Greensboro is experiencing growing pains which places a most difficult burden upon those responsible for her affairs. During such periods strong, capable, sound-thinking men are needed to handle the affairs of the city.

We do not feel that our situation is completely hopeless but we do see a tremendous need for improvement.

AMERICA BY 1975

America by 1975 will be driving 85 million trucks and automobiles in its highways and rural roadways. By 1975, it is anticipated, there will be one car for every two to two and one-half persons. Now there is one car for every three persons.

The National Association of Manufacturers, citing figures from The President's Materials Policy Commission Report of June, 1952, states that America's dynamic growth by 1975 can mean 65 million passenger cars and 20 million trucks on the nation's roads.

The repart states that "the projected domestic requirement for automobiles (by 1875) is therefore between 6.5 and 7.5 million . . ." per year.

The origin of the slogan "Safety First" is somewhat obscure. However, in 1890, Henry C. Frick, president of the Heenry C. Frick Company, issued a bulletin to all mine superintendents which said in part: "We shall always keep the fact prominently in our mind that it is the desire of our company, and our duty as well, that we make safety of the lives of our employees our first and foremost important business." Nine years later Frick inaugurated the country's first industry-wide safety campaign, with the slogan "Safety First, Quality Second, Cost Third." The slogan was later shortened through usage too "Safety First."

PSYCHOLOGY

Can anger be controlled?

( ) Yes ( ) No

Yes, if we understand anger results when a strong impulse or desire is thwarted. To overcome the emotion of anger, analyze the circumstances, decide whether or not the end desired is worth the anger aroused. Parents now know children who come to believe they must have their way at all cost, develop personalities easily given to angry outbursts.

LITERATURE

As an interesting bit of self instruction memorize the following statements. A week from now test yourself to learn if you can remember them and the names of those who wrote them.

"Whoever is in a hurry shows that the thing he is about to do is too big for him."—Lord Chesterfield.

SCIENCE

What is the name of the self-educated scientist whose discovery made possible the great dynamos and generators which supply almost all our electricity?

( ) Edison ( ) Newton ( ) Faraday

Michael Faraday, great scientist of the nineteenth century, discovered a magnet moved within a coil of wire will start a current of electricity flowing through the wire! Son of a blacksmith, he had little early schooling, became a bookbinder's apprentice, spent all his spare time reading, and was appointed to the Royal Institution of Great Britain.

Speaking of PUBLIC SAFETY

20,000 persons are duped to death each year by the fallacy that you are safer driving at night simply because there is less traffic.

Actually, you need only a glimpse of the traffic accident picture to realize how fallacious that reasoning really is.

Out of every hundred fatal accidents, 60 occur in the dark when only 25 of every 100 vehicles are operating. In addition to the 20,000 lives, the night toll last year was 900,000 injured and $1 billion of economic loss.

It is because of the greater danger of fatality at night that motorists are urged to observe special safety precautions after dark.

REDUCED SPEED: Driving at night should always be at speeds which permit stopping within range of headlight vision.

WATCH FOR SIGNAL CRASHERS: Never crash lights nor stop signs and don't ever move into an intersection until you have looked in both directions after the light has changed. Don't assume that a green light means safety! Too many drivers like to race through the red end of a light change.

PROPER VEHICLE LIGHTING: Headlights should be accurately focused, kept clean, and rear lights properly operating. Directional signal lights, both front and rear, aid in signaling but no driver at night should assume the mere act of signaling his intent will prevent an accident. He should never intersect traffic unless absolutely sure he has ample time to avoid a "close call".

DON'T DRIVE IF DROWSY: Night driving requires keenness of all faculties. Seconds save lives. If you feel sleepy, don't drive. Thousands of people are killed because either they or the drivers who hit them dozed for an instant.

AVOID ALCOHOL: Darkness which dulls vision and alcohol which slows mental and physical reactions is a deadly combination at night. If you must drink, for humanity's sake don't drive.

Motorists are urged to observe these precautions at night to compensate for the inadequate visibility which will continue to make night driving dangerous until street lighting is made adequate in cities and towns and on critical accident-prone areas of highways.

MEASURE OF POPULATION GAIN—The U. S. population is increasing at a phenomenal rate. By 1975 rising birth rates and declining death rates are expected to add 40 to 60 million people. This is roughly equivalent to the 52 million people living in the 22 states west of the Mississippi River. The National Association of Manufacturers says that to provide jobs for the estimated 22 million new people entering the work force will require an investment of at least $264 billion in plants and equipment. The estimate is based on studies which show that today's average investment per job is about $12,000.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

... by Dr. George S. Benson

DIRECTOR - NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
Searcy, Arkansas

Americans today must face the following two vital facts: (1) Socialism in one form or another continues to expand its area of control across the earth; and (2) the only really effective backfire that could be built against the encroachment of this dark shadow must be built here in the United States. If we fail to build the backfire and keep it burning ever brighter through the next few years, civilization may be plunged into another Dark Age like the one which followed the collapse of the Roman Empire.

The situation is just that serious. The answer to this towering problem lies in moblizing a concerted effort among our whole U. S. population toward the building up of two kinds of strength—physical strength and moral strength. They go hand in hand.

We can build the moral strength of America in only one way—by each of us dedicating a larger portion of our lives to Christ, by standing firm upon the mighty foundation of Christian principles given to mankind 2,000 years ago by the Son of God; and by developing an inexhaustible faith in the triumph of right over wrong. Each of us should make this his personal objective. Altogether we should make it our common objective, at the community, state and national levels.

The building of our physical strength can be limited only by how strong we make the productive might of our industries, our mines, forests and farms; and how steadfast we stand on the political and economic principles embedded in our constitutional government—from the grass roots up to Washington. Each citizen of America has as much a part in the building of this collective physical strength as he has in adding his faith and his dedication to the moral strength of the nation.

Our government can maintain these important qualities of soundness and progressiveness only if enough of our citizens sacrifice enough time from more pleasurable pursuits and engage actively in government affairs. Our local, state and national governments reflect the sum total of the intelligence and the political action of our citizenry. And so, our self-interest and the safety of our national and personal freedom depend upon each of us becoming more active in religious, economic, and public affairs.

Howdy, Stranger!

The life story of a shrimp begins in the spring or summer, when spawning takes place in offshore waters. The eggs, mere specks of living matter, are discharged by the female and probably remain near the ocean bottom until hatched This habit of the shrimp is entirely different from that of the closely related crabs and lobsters, in which the famales carry the eggs on the abominal appendages until they hatch.

Middle-Aged Man Finds Life Just Begun In Priestley Novel

A relief from the forced style and lack of style in the majority of present day writers is The Magicians, by J. B. Priestley, An excellent story teller, on the order of Somerset Maugham, Priestley, wastes no words in spinning his yarn. A master of the technique of story writing, he launches directly into his book and as the characters unfold so does his plot, with every incident bearing upon the final outcome of the story.

The book is about a middle-aged business man, forced to retire, who finds that for him, life has just begun.

Charles Ravenstreet was a high-powered business man with no other interest in life save his work. When the company directors asked him to retire, he lost his one reason for being alive.

The author brings him to meet three unusual old men who change his entire outlook and consequently his reasons for living.

The whole book can well be called a satire on the public opinion of middle age.

"I'm not stale," said Ravenstreet reflectively. "I'm dead. I think I died about four years ago."

"Don't be fancy. The truth is, you're a damned silly age—middle fifties—I remember 'em. Still not old enough to enjoy the moment and to the devil with everything else. Hang on and things will come right again, after a fashion. I'm seventy-four, and in theory I don't like anything any more, but in practice I enjoy this and that. You ought to have married again, Charles. I know you weren't too lucky with Maureen. Never cared for her myself, though perhaps I oughtn't to say so, for the poor girl's dead and her father was one of my oldest friends. A great friend to you too, my boy.

"Yes, I loved old Frank. Better than I did Maureen, though I tried for all our sakes. I think I didn't marry again, George, because when I occasionally thought of it, I was too busy, and when I was less busy I'd stopped thinking about it. At the risk of being told I'm being fancy again, I'll tell you that really I'm dead. Now that the Company's been taken away from me, I see it quite clearly. So here's where you tell me I ought to have some nice hobbies—like you."

But all of this is changed, and how it was done awaits the reader of The Magicians.

The author, J. B. Priestley, was born in Yorkshire, England, at the end of the 19th century. He received a degree from Cambridge University and went on to London where he became known as essayist, reviewer and critic. He gained his reputation in 1929 as a novelist with The Good Companions. Since then he has written plays, radio and television scripts and many other forms of the art. He wrote and helped produce the film Last Holiday.

Church Publishes "Tips on Television"

The following "Tips on Television," by Edward D. Staples, was distributed by the Department of The Christian Family of the Board of Education of the Methodist Church, Nashville, Tenn.:

1. Be certain that children do not sit too close to the set. The flicker may damage their vision.

2. Watch with your children often enough to know the type of programs you wish them to see.

3. Discuss standards for evaluating programs with the whole family.

4. Do you wish your children to learn about "throat irritation," "the second glass is better than the first," or to see liquor being consumed in very attractive surroundings? If not, do not permit your children to see advertising which advertise objectionable products. Slogans occur over and over again and this repetition impresses them upon the memory of the child.

5. Choose the best on television and create in your children a taste for high quality.

6. There are many cheap, poor shows, not suitable for children. You don't have to see them. Help your children recognize a poor show and turn it off.

7. When you see a good show, write the television station and tell them you enjoyed it. Protest vulgar and cheap performances. Gradually television can be improved. Sponsors give the public what they think the people want.

8. Get groups of parents in your church and community to discuss the values and advantages of television.

To Attend Wedding In Ontario, Canada

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haverlack, Jr. are leaving next week for Ontario, Canada, where they will attend the marriage of Dr. John T. H. Stewart, brother of Mrs. Haverlack.

Dr. Stewart and his bride will leave immediately for Liberia, under the Missionary Society to be chief surgeon in the Liberia Hospital.

Mrs. Haverlack is assistant nurse at White Oak Infant and Pre-School Clinic.

Man is still the world's most wonderful machine. Want proof? Then look at these figures some statistician has compiled:

In 70 years of life, a human being eats 1,400 times his own body weight, over 100 tons of food, and he spends five full years putting food in his mouth. If his weight is average, every day his heart beats 103,680 times, his blood travels 168,000,000 miles, he breathes 23,040 times, he inhales 438 cubic feet of air, gives off 85 degrees F. of heat and moves 750 major muscles. The average person blinks 25 times a minute and each blink last one-fifth of a second. Thus if he averages 40 miles an hour on a ten hour motor trip, he drives 25 miles with his eyes shut. This body can take a lot of punishment and still function. A man can get along without his gall bladder, spleen, appendix, and bladder. He can give up one kidney, two quarts of blood, a piece of his brain, all of his teeth and live.

And just one traffic accident can stop this wonderful machine cold.

Everybody has been taking pictures for a long time; but only with the introduction of the 16 mm reversal safety film in 1923 did home movies get off to a firm start. Now we take them in black and white, in color, with sound, and with "foolproof" cartridge loading, and in 35 mm, 16 mm, or 8 mm sizes with equal sureness and safety.

"Wonder why some decent people will suddenly become demons behind a wheel?"

Parrotts To Live In Oxford, England

Mrs. Wilbur Parrott of Revolution has returned home after accompanying her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Parrott to New York City where she saw them off on the Steamship Ryndam for South Hampton, England.

In England they were met by Mrs. Parrott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. E. Roberts and motored to Oxford, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Wilbur Parrott remained north and visited relatives, Mr. and Mrs. William Boop in Cornwall, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. John Mullen in Weehawken, N. J.

We once had a very capable woman working for us. Her husband, however, was a happy-go-lucky fellow who, although very likeable, never seemed able to keep a job and seldom bothered to try. One day I asked why she put up with him. Without hesitating she said, "It's like this, Mis'. I makes de livin' and he makes de livin' worthwhile."

Get the "feel" of a new car before you do much driving on the open road. Safety experts of the State Motor Vehicles Department caution that a brand new car can interfere with old driving habits. Don't let unfamiliar steering, brakes, clutch and gadgets set you up for an accidenet. Get acquainted slowly with new cars or trucks.

White Oak Y's Men Honor Rayon Team

White Oak Y's Men's Club had a banquet meeting last Wednesday night honoring the Revolution Rayon Plant Softball Team, winner of Cone Mills Softball League. Marvin Law spoke to the group and presented the league championship trophy to Jack Phillips, manager of the team.

W. O. Leonard, Jr., president of the White Oak Y's Men's Club, was toastmaster for the occasion. He also made a report on his attendance at the Southeastern Regional Convention of Y's Men International last week end at Canton.

Invocation was by Wade Jenkins, and vocal music was by Tommy McDonald, accompanied by Miss Rachel Kincaid.

Frank Starling introduced Mr. Law who discussed the spirit of sportsmanship as a building factor in the culture and industry as well as sports in the United States, especially in the South.

MISS HOLMAN RETIRES

mony in her honor in the grove that was on Summit Avenue. On that day she received many fine gifts and approbations.

"That was the most wonderful thing that ever happened or ever will happen to me," says Miss Holman.

Now, what to do with all the leisure time? Most of it will be spent in her home, 741 Park Avenue, which she shares with Miss Phoebe Richards, who for many years headed the Proximity community welfare work and is now employed in the Personnel Department.

That home has been blessed recently with two baby Chihuahuas, children of their beloved Blossom.

These prized pets will be put away in kennels when Miss Holman and Miss Richards journey northward this month to the World Series. Miss Holman is using the gift money she received this week to help pay her way to something that has long enticed her, but a dream, she has never felt able to realize.

Some of the time ahead will be spent in visiting her many relatives and some will be spent in pursuing her favorite outdoor sport, fishing at Butler's Lake. Indoors, she is a great crocheter, making dog jackets, baby clothes, bedspreads, anything.

Miss Holman declared, "I've enjoyed the 41 years I've been working for the most wonderful people and company in the world. I regret to sever my connections with them."

So an active career has ended, but the results of her work will not cease as long as there are people who remember Frances Holman and what she has meant to the community and the individuals who live in it.
